

ARMY DIVISION PERSONNEL BRANCH

The Personnel Branch, Army Division, is responsible for the operation of the personnel actions applicable to the personnel of the California Army National Guard and the California National Guard Reserve; operates in accordance with approved department policies, Military and Veterans Code, State of California; National Guard and applicable U. S. Army Regulations; makes recommendations for personnel policies and prepares the necessary directives; maintains military records of Army National Guard and California National Guard Reserve officers, warrant officers and enlisted personnel and is responsible for the administration of decorations and awards.

During the period of this report, 695 officer and warrant officer applications for appointment were processed. Because of the loss of 751 officers and warrant officers through discharge, retirement and death, a net decrease of 56 was made. The enlisted personnel section processed 8,308 enlistments, 8,331 reenlistments and 19,049 discharges.

On 1 July 1958, the strength of the California Army National Guard was 1,804 officers, 316 warrant officers, and 19,931 enlisted men, a total of 22,051.

Beginning 1 May 1959, the Army National Guard was reorganized under the pentomic concept; the new Tables of Organization reduced the authorized strength in some organizations.

The strength on 30 June 1960 had decreased to 1761 officers, 303 warrant officers, and 17,629 enlisted men, a total of 19,693.

Active duty officers assigned to this branch are: Lt Colonel Herbert J. Johnson, Chief, Captain Denton L. Cederblom, and 2d Lt Carl A. Larson, Assistant Personnel Officers.

ORGANIZATION AND TRAINING BRANCH

The Organization and Training Branch, Army Division, continued to perform its assigned mission within six primary functions. Under the supervision of Lt Colonel Paul H. Binford, Chief, Organization and Training Branch, these functions encompass the following activities:

Executive Officer :--Interior Administration; Annual General Inspections, Command Inspections.

Administrative Section :--Correspondence Files, Reports and Statistics; Office Property and Supplies; Drafting.

Training Section :--Armory Training, Annual Active Duty for Training; Equipment Allocation; Training Aids; Evaluation Reports, Service Schools; Extension Courses; Unit Schools.

Organization Section :--Organization of the Army National Guard; Change of Unit Location; Ammunition Allocation; Small Arms Competition; Army Aviation; Map Acquisition; Military Amateur Radio System.

Air Defense Section :--Program Coordination; Task Organization; Operations.

Officer Candidate Schools Section :--California Army National Guard OCS; Special Army National Guard OCS; Active Army OCS, Military Academies.

Plans Section :--National and State Emergencies; Assembly Plans.

Applicable to the foregoing functions, the Organization and Training Branch receives policy guidance and similar directives from Federal sources and instructions must be prepared for use by Army National Guard units in order that they may progress as well trained military reserves of the United States Army. In addition, policy and guidance originated by The Adjutant General is also implemented by the branch.

In its role as a state military force, the California Army National Guard is often called upon to perform emergency measures in aid of civil authorities. The Organization and Training Branch assumes the initial responsibility to carry out the desires of the Governor as expressed by him to The Adjutant General.

As of 30 June 1960, the following named officers were assigned to duties and functions as indicated:

Major Mark O. Sands-----	Executive Officer
Lt Colonel Charles T. Hilby-----	Organization Section
Major Harry M. Nicolson-----	Officer Candidate School
Major Robert E. Johnson, Jr.-----	Air Defense Section
Captain Nicholas F. Palermo-----	Training Section

ORGANIZATION

The California Army National Guard in this biennial period was reorganized in accordance with the new Army concept that units and organizations must reduce vulnerability to enemy mass destruction weapons, and keep pace with the new weapons and equipment. Tactical concepts demanded increased fire power, improved mobility and versatile organizations readily adaptable to an atomic battlefield.

The change in the troop structure of the CAL ARNG was undertaken with the following objectives:

Integrate existing organizations into the new troop structure to obtain the most effective organizations and units possible.

Cause the least possible hardship to present personnel and communities where units now exist.

Avoid interference with Air Defense Artillery on-site units.

Provide the 40th Armored Division with additional area and opportunities to acquire personnel.

Provide the 49th Infantry Division with a reduced geographical area and absorb existing excess personnel in other units.

Locate units with respect to each other to enable higher headquarters to properly supervise these units in the most effective measure.

Locate all separate units and organizations so as to meet the requirements of the above objectives.

Each Army National Guard organization and separate unit is assigned a priority designation. This designation authorizes the organization or separate unit to organize at a strength level appropriate to its mission.

Priority I: Those organizations and separate units required and designated to round out the active Army; to initiate the expansion of the mobilization base, and to accomplish other missions assigned to the Army in the initial stages of mobilization. These units normally are authorized to organize up to 84 percent of full TOE strengths.

Priority II: Those organizations and separate units required and designated to organize six Reserve Component Division Forces; to continue the expansion of the mobilization base; and to accomplish other missions assigned to the Army in the early stages of mobilization. These units normally are authorized to organize up to 71 percent.

Priority III: Those organizations and separate units which are not designated for an early call to active duty during mobilization. These are the remainder of the units, after the Priority I and II units have been mobilized, which are required to accomplish the subsequent steps of phased mobilization and Army expansion. These units normally are authorized to organize up to 55 percent.

The following California Army National Guard organizations and separate units have been assigned the priority indicated:

AIR OPERATIONS AND TRAINING BRANCH

The Operations and Training Branch is responsible for the training, organization, tactical status, and operations employment of units of the California Air National Guard. Included within the broad scope of these responsibilities is the requirement to develop plans and implement procedures pertaining to flying, unit training, service schools, aircraft accident prevention programs, safety inspections, unit alert and disaster plans, mobilization, maneuvers and exercises, communications, aircraft maintenance, and unit operational readiness.

Organization

During this biennium a number of major organizational changes occurred which reduced the assigned units from 41 to 40 as of 30 June 1960. One of these changes which marks an important departure in the concept of roles and missions for the Reserve Components was the assignment of the four-engine C-97 "Stratocruiser" transport to the 146th Wing of the California Air National Guard. With the assignment of these aircraft comes the responsibility of a global mission in support of the USAF Military Air Transport Service (MATS). Symbolic acceptance of this responsibility was evidenced when aircraft of the 115th and 195th Air Transport Squadron landed at Tachikawa Air Force Base, near Tokyo, Japan, in May 1960.

Some of the more important organizational changes during this period were as follows:

- 10 August 1958—195th Weather Flight (Limited Forecasting-Observation) and the 196th Weather Flight (Limited Forecasting) were reorganized and redesignated as Weather Flights (Forecasting and Observing).
- 31 October 1958—Headquarters, 129th Air Resupply Group and 129th Airborne Materiels Assembly Squadron were inactivated at Hayward ANG Base.
- 1 November 1958—129th Air Resupply Squadron was reorganized and redesignated the 129th Troop Carrier Squadron, Medium.
- 1 November 1958—129th Air Base Squadron activated at Hayward ANG Base.
- 10 December 1958—Following units redesignated as indicated:
 - Hq, 146th Fighter-Interceptor Wing to Hq, 146th Tactical Fighter Wing
 - Hq, 146th Fighter-Interceptor Group to Hq, 146th Tactical Fighter Group
 - 115th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron to 115th Tactical Fighter Squadron
 - 195th Tactical Reconnaissance Squadron to 195th Tactical Fighter Squadron
- 9 December 1958—Following units were relieved from assignment to the 146th Fighter-Interceptor Wing and assigned to the 144th Air Defense Wing, Fresno ANGB, Fresno, for operational, administrative and logistical jurisdiction:
 - Headquarters, 163rd Fighter Group (AD)
 - 163rd Consolidated Aircraft Maintenance Squadron
 - 163rd Air Base Squadron
 - 163rd USAF Dispensary
 - 196th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron
 - 196th Weather Flight (Forecasting and Observing).
- 1 January 1959—216th Communications Construction Squadron redesignated the 216th GEEIA Squadron
- 15 January 1960—Following units redesignated as indicated:
 - Hq, 146th Tactical Fighter Wing to Hq, 146th Air Transport Wing (Heavy)
 - 115th Tactical Fighter Squadron to 115th Air Transport Squadron (Heavy)
 - 195th Tactical Fighter Squadron to 195th Air Transport Squadron (Heavy)

As a result of the above changes the California Air National Guard was composed of the following units at the end of this reporting period:

Hq, California Air National Guard, Sacramento	195th Air Transport Squadron (H)
FRESNO AIR NATIONAL GUARD BASE, FRESNO	Hq, 146th Maintenance Supply Group
Hq, 144th Air Defense Wing	146th Field Maintenance Squadron
